NORWICH UNIVERSITY

The December issue of the Revue will be ready for distribution before the close of the term.

The question discussed Friday by the sections in Freshman English was: Resolved, That child labor should be prohibited in the United States by national legislation.

The catalogue for 1908 is expected from the publisher before the close of the term. It is issued as the "Catalogue number of the Norwich university Record," and three other numbers of the Record will be distributed during the year. The new course in electrical engineering appears in this catalogue and several radical changes in the other courses have been made.

The first of the class dances occurred Friday evening in Dewey hall, under the auspices of the Senior class of the university. The affair was in charge of a committee and was in every way a brilliant success. The hall was prettily decorated with college banners, and the stage was banked with evergreen, while a cosy-looking campfire constructed of wood, asbestos and electricity added much to the general effect. The music was furnished by Whittier's orchestra of Montpelier, and it is needless to say was excellent. Ladies of the faculty were patronesses of the occasion. The next dance will be given by the faculty to the cadets, Friday evening, January 10, 1908.

The most plausible method of securing attendance at the drills of the militia troops throughout the country is now being considered by the war department. Lieut. L. A. I. Chapman, U. S. A., commander at the university, has from the first been strongly in favor of "duty pay," believing it to be the best method of maintaining interest in the state's forces. In this connection the following is taken from Army and Navy Life: "Duty pay," for all drills, is evidently soon to be paid the state forces. Before the Wainwright commission in New York, Major Turpin, Captain Barker, Colonel Morris, Colonel Austin and others advocated for pay. Major C. J. Stevens, Major T. Wilhelm, Captain M. S. Jarvis, Major A. M. Fuller, Captain R. R. Stevens, Captain W. P. Stone, Lieutenant F. H. Adams, Lieutenant S. W. Anding and Lieutenant L. A. I. Chapman, all recommended that pay for drill be granted. It is not said, but officers understood that if militia troops are paid and a fund thus provided from which may be deducted the cost of uniforms lost or destroyed by the men, shoeing in disregard of care of government property now shown by many enlisted men, will no longer be shown and officers relieved from the great expense of replacing missing articles.

Since selling the Reformer he has been engaged in writing a political history, designed as a text book for colleges and schools, and he intends to have it published.

WORK FOR THE LABEL

Organized Labor Should Push the Union Emblem.

A WEAPON OF GREAT POWER.

Tremendous Possibilities of a Systematic Demand For Union Made Goods—A Plan of Procedure Suggested.

The policy advocated in the following article from the Shoe Workers' Journal may be adopted with profit by all labor organizations:

If the members of this union realized the value of our union stamp, with all its undeveloped possibilities of benefit to the shoe workers, they would immediately get together and boost it to complete success.

The union stamp, properly understood by all members, would furnish the basis of that degree of harmony and united effort which would enable our union to vanquish every form of opposition that now confronts it.

It is not enough to preach the gospel of trades unionism to the thoughtless, heedless hordes, but it must be driven into them by sheer force.

Organization being recognized as a prerequisite to any scheme of improving the condition of the shoe workers, the question is how to get it.

Where the individual member or organizer fails to induce the nonunion worker to join our ranks, the union stamp is the imperative demand of the united unionists of the nation that the procrastinating nonunionists shall get out or get in line.

The union stamp, then, being the one and only force that can and will bring the obstinate into line, common sense would seem to picture that its power be developed and utilized to the utmost, so that complete organization may be brought about in the quickest possible time.

We would suggest here a brief statement of a programme that, if carried out, would vastly improve the conditions of the workers in our industry, and do it in vastly less time than the shoe workers have spent in bitter internal quarrels.

First, make a tremendous campaign of agitation for the union stamp among all wearers of shoes, by visiting union meetings, by lectures, by distributing souvenirs, by advertising in all ways. No matter what the cost, make the shoe dealers call on the shoe manufacturers and demand shoes bearing the union stamp. Second, let every member and officer of the union back up this campaign and down every knocker who opposes it. Bury personal differences and grievances for the time being and all pull together for the common good. Third, as fast as the manufacturers apply for the stamp accept them on a straight arbitration contract. If you drive them away by attaching conditions you not only have nothing to say about future conditions in that factory, but you have checked the growth of your movement. Welcome each manufacturer and use his goods as a competitive club to drive in another.

The union stamp is not high wages. It is the tool by which may be secured that degree of organization which in turn can secure high wages. The union stamp is the means by which the necessary power is to be secured. The union stamp can be prevented from being of value in accomplishing broad and general results by attacking a few local conditions. A silly attempt to use power before you get it may prevent you from ever getting power. Don't say this cannot be done, because it has been done. The membership of this union was multiplied by ten in three years. A complete unionizing of our craft was prevented only by a sudden desire of the shoe workers to fight each other.

Our resources today are tremendous when compared with 1890, and if we unite our efforts now in support of the only policy that put us where we are we will achieve the greatest success in modern trades unionism.

The more united we are the shorter the time.

To those who are impatient and who want to do something now we say, keep your eye on the goal and do not be swayed from the main track for trifles.

Then you can announce one step at a time and enforce a programme something like this:

First.—Abolition of child labor.

Second.—Shorten the hours, thus increasing the demand for labor.

Third.—Establish minimum rates of wages.

Fourth.—Level wages upward, raising the low paid.

Fifth.—More wages for everybody.

Sixth.—Higher wages.

These successive steps can be carried out if done singly and with that uniformity and fairness to all employees which is made possible only by the organization of all employees.

There is not and there never was any argument that could stand against the adoption of this policy, and strict adherence to it until the desired end is reached.

This policy made Brockton a union city, and the minute Brockton departed from this policy its union interests were threatened.

Let us pledge anew our fealty to the only policy that has made the success of this union possible.

Let us rally round our union stamp and win a glorious victory which is waiting to our hand.
